

Enrolment completed in Ruconest Phase II prophylaxis trial

Pharming has announced the completion of enrolment into its international 30-patient Phase II prophylaxis trial of Ruconest for the treatment of hereditary angioedema (HAE). Results of the trial are expected at the end of 2Q16. Partnered with Valeant, Ruconest has had a successful roll-out in the US since its launch there in November 2014 as an acute treatment for HAE. We forecast sales of Ruconest of $335m in 2020E of which we forecast $85m from prophylactic use. We continue to believe the successful roll-out of Ruconest in the US and the potential for the product are not adequately reflected in Pharming's share price and reiterate our Buy rating and €0.88 target price.

Completion of enrolment in Phase II prophylaxis study. In January 2015, Pharming initiated this 30-patient randomised, double-blind, placebo-controlled trial of Ruconest in the treatment of patients with hereditary angioedema (HAE). Patients receive treatment with either once- or twice-weekly Ruconest or placebo over a four-week period and are then crossed over to another regimen so that all patients receive each treatment. Completion of enrolment gives us more certainty that top-line results will be available at the end of 2Q16. If the results are positive, Pharming plans to meet with the FDA and EMA to discuss further clinical work needed prior to being able to apply for approval of Ruconest in prophylaxis. We have assumed a Phase III trial will be required and currently forecast launch of Ruconest in the indication in late 2018.

Prophylaxis indication represents around 44% of $1.4bn HAE market. Shire's Cinryz is the only product currently approved for prophylactic use. If approved, we believe the indication could significantly expand Ruconest's sales. In 2020E, we forecast sales of Ruconest of $335m, of which $85m is from prophylactic use.

Subcutaneous formulation of Ruconest could be major advance. Pharming has also announced plans to discuss a subcutaneous (SC) formulation of Ruconest with regulators. Currently the major reason why Shire's Firazyr dominates the acute HAE treatment market is its more convenient SC dosing vs IV dosing for Ruconest and others. Any progress on a SC formulation of Ruconest would be a major commercial advance.

Reiterate Buy rating. Based on our NPV analysis, we value Pharming at €0.88/share, offering significant upside potential to the current share price. Buy.

Target price methodology/risks

Target price is based on our risk-adjusted product-based NPV valuation.

Risks to the investment include Pharming's reliance on distribution partners to execute commercialisation strategy for Ruconest, along with the risk that market acceptance is lower than expected or unforeseen safety and efficacy issues affect the global growth. Competition may also increase from 2018 onwards, and the increasing tendency of health insurers to reduce costs and reimbursement may provide additional headwind to Ruconest commercialisation.
